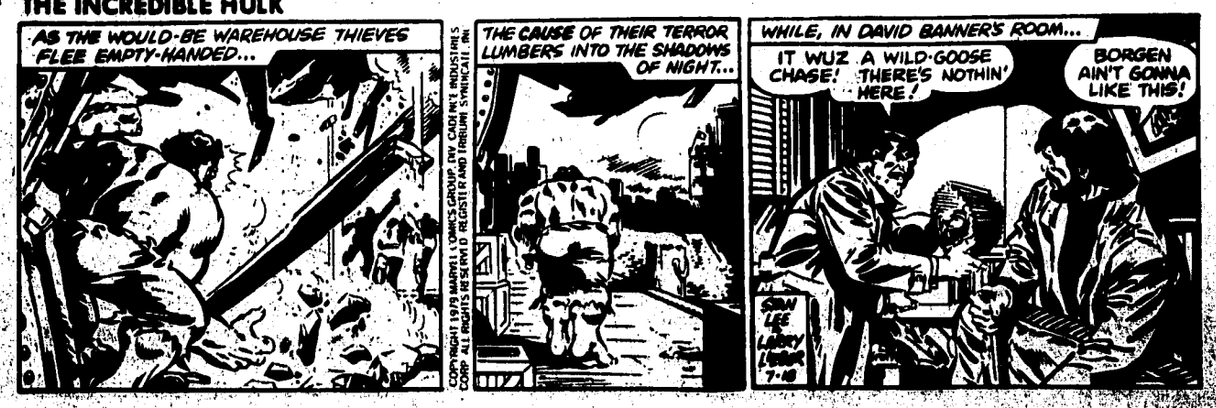
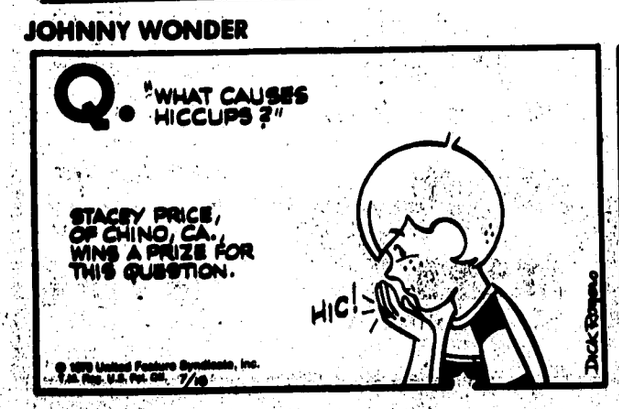
THE INCREDIBLE HULK



JOHNNY WONDER



A. A hiccup, or hiccough, is a jerky gulp made when the diaphragm, a large muscle that helps our breathing, does not work properly. Hiccups can start when something has irritated the passage near the diaphragm, such as overeating or gulping liquids too fast. This irritation causes the diaphragm to jerk suddenly. The spasm pulls air into the lungs and closes the opening of the airway in the throat. The sound of the hiccup is produced when you try to inhale while the air passages are closed. People can sometimes stop hiccups by breathing deeply.

You can win a prize, too, if your question is selected. Send your questions and age to JOHNNY WONDER, P.O. Box 1828, (DA) Santa Cruz, CA 95061.
